

Biography

A university student and a cinema labourer, Selim Sahinturk was born in Istanbul in 1995. After having completed his primary, secondary and high school in Uskudar district, he was admitted to Istanbul University to pursue his bachelor degree in the Radio, TV, and Cinema Department and he continues his education therein.

His interest in cinema dates back to his high school years when he has always tried to write scripts and direct their videos. Since he started to work in film industry in various capacities, he has gained more experience and professionalism in his such endeavours. His target is to sit in the seat of directorship for the feature film that he would write its script.

Director Statement

Life is about to make decisions. And life is nothing more than the moments that we make decisions, as our lives would be shaped by them. If we make mistakes in such moments, life can lead us to some undesired ends and we may have to regret in the rest of our lives. This story focuses on how men distinguish the right and wrong.

What is right and what is wrong?

Are they something that one can find with his/her own free thinking and consciousness or do we need a religion or ideology for this?

This story is about the moment of truth for a man of religion.